Rheumatism,
BEING due to the presence of uric acid in the blood, is most effectually cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Be sure you get Ayer's and no other, and take it till the poisonous acid is thoroughly expelled from the system. We challenge attention to this testimony:—
"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months, and am pleased to state that it has effected a complete cure. I have since had no return of the disease."—Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th St., New York.
"One year ago I was taken ill with inflammatory rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."—Mrs. L. A. AMONG THE BREAKERS.

At a pleasant family reunion in New York the sons and daughters of an old commodore of the navy were assembled at the house of a well known citizen to celebrate a domestic anniversary.

The table had been cleared, cigars lighted, and the vet ran, being urged by the young ladies to spin them a sea yarn, related the following story:

It occured, he said, soon after I entered the service, now more than forty years ago. We were just about to leave Hampton Roads on a cruise, when the captain's gig dashed alongside, and with the old skipper came a slight, girlish, fair haired boy, apparently a mere child, but dressed in the uniform at that time worn by the midshipmen of our navy.

The little fellow had been sent to sea to learn an honorable profession, because his father, since his bankruptcy, could not educate his son at home in a manner becoming his former station. He stood uncertain for a while on the quarter deck, alone, neglected, abashed, until the captain, suddenly recolecting himself, turned round and introducing him to us ended by committing Harry Broughton, as I shall call him, to my oversight, as the oldest midshipman on board.

We were soon on intimate terms, and he was so frank, generous and winning in his manners that you could not for the life of you, escape loving the little fellow. Even the rugged old tars would do anything to please him, and the severity of the first lieutenant himself often relaxed itself when little Harry, as we all called him, had offended against some paltry rule of discipline. Always the first to turn out in a gale, never to be found skulking like some of our other youngsters from his watch, and at all times eager to volunteer on any extra duty, he gradually wound himself into the hearts of every one on board, from the landlubbers in the waist to the captain in his after cabin. If we went on shore Harry was sure to be one of our company, for he was such a favorite with strangers on account of his youth and beauty that we were always better welcomed if he was along.

We had been out nearly three years, cruising on the Pacific station, when we were ordered home, and right glad we all were to hear the news. The long, beautiful moonlights came and went like the sound of music, and a hundred gallant fellows danced away the evening watches to the lively notes of the violin.

We reached the Philippine Islands, passed the straits and at last entered the Bay of Bengal. We were all heartly tired of close confinement on shipboard, and resolved to run up the bay and visit a few of the chief stations on the coast. It was a glorious day when we first caught sight of Madras, with the sunlight playing full on its walls and minarets, the long, low beach of white sand crowned with the walls of the fort above, and a tremendous surf rolling and thundering in ahead. Every heart beat high with pleasure, and it was not a difficult matter to obtain permision to land. A party of officers, among whom were Harry and myself, resolved to make an excursion into the town.

I should have mentioned that there is no port for vessels within twenty miles of St. George's fort, and as our frigate would be compelled to stretch out and in until our return we had but little time for our adventure. We had intended when we started to leave the boats outside the surf and to land in flats which were used for passing the breakers, and which, being sewed together and without keels, are admirably fitted to resist the jerking of the suf and cannot without great difficulty be overturned. But when we neared the shore we saw that none of these native boats were at hand, and as we had but little time to loose we lay upon our oars just out the breakers and called a council to determine what to do.

"What say you, Frank, to making a dash, and passing it at once? It will be something to talk of—eh!"

I shook my head in disapprobation as I pointed to the huge billows that raced by us, and curling over a cable's length ahead broke with noise like thunder on the beach, while the shivered wave boiled and foamed in the vortex below.

"Give way, my sea dogs, give way!" shouted the third lieutenant, coming up abreast in gallent style; "shall we dash in, Mr. Tiller?"

"It looks like a venture where one cast is death, and the other is ducking, but what say you, Broughton?"

"Oh, sir," replied the little fellow, his eyes kindling as he spoke, "they say an English man-of-war's boat passed it a few years ago, and I'm sure we can do it, too. Besides, sir, we can try it with one boat first. It isn't such a high surf, after all, and look there, sir, they're watching us from the fort."

True enough, the officers of the garrison were quizzing us already with their glasses.

I still, however, objected, feeling a strange kind of presentiment that some dreadful accident would occur if we ventured in the surf. But the national pride of our men had been touched, and, the lieutenant, seeing it, wavered no longer, and shouting the order to "Give way," our crew broke into a cheer and dashed rapidly up to the gigantic breakers.

The aspect of the surf as we approached it was terrible. Enormous billows rolled in, one after another rose like monsters, paused a moment with their white crests combing before they descended and then hurled their mass of water down into the abyss below with the noise of a mighty cataract.

Hitherto all had been careless on board, and jests had been flying plentifully about, but every man now felt that a crisis was at hand, and accordingly the deepest silence prevailed, broken only by the noise of the oars and quick orders of the lieutenant.

"Larboard!" shouted Tiller, waving his hand, "larboard a little more!" and riding on an enormous wave we were whirled into the heart of the surf, with two gigantic billows madly pursuing us on our quarter. For a moment we thought the crisis passed, but all at once the wave seemed to lose its impetus, and gliding from beneath us broached us almost broadside to, while the foremost of our pursuers dashed against us and heeled us nearly over into the abyss. We were losing all command of the boat, when suddenly a voice from our colleague outside of the surf exclaimed:

"Look out, there's a shark on your quarter!" At the same instant Tiller, perceiving our danger, thundered, "Larboard, hard—ease off there, larboard harder, for God's sake, down!" but the poor coxswain, startled by the ill timed warning from the other boat and conscious of the terrible situation in which we were, lost for a moment all command of his faculties, and before he could regain them sufficiently to obey the command of his officer a wave struck us full on our broadside and in another instant, with a wild cry of horror, we found ourselves struggling in the surf.

When I rose to the surface I struck out boldly, but I shall never forget the sight that met my eyes. The boat was already broken in pieces and the fragments tossing about, while the crew were struggling here and there in the breakers. A poor fellow was just ahead of me, buffeting with the waves, his agonized look fixed on a huge shark that lay eyeing him just without the surf. He screamed for succer, but it was in vain. The current was gradually sweeping him nearer to his terrible enemy. The other boat ventured as near as it could, but it would have been madness to approach nearer. Suddenly he gave a quick, shrill shriek flung his arms upward and sank. The next instant the blood red hue of the surface told the fearful cause.

As for myself, I struck desperately for the shore, and being a good swimmer as long as I could command my faculties I knew I had some chance of reaching land. I had turned in order to escape the current and find a place where the surf rolled in less frightfully, when I heard a faint cry, and saw little Harry struggling not two fathoms off. He seemed almost exhausted, and was barely able to keep his head above water.

"For the love of hesven," he cried, "Frank—here!" But as I swam towards him the noble boy exclaimed: "No! Save yourself—I'm nearly gone—am getting weak—tell mother and Fanny I died thinking of them.

"Courage!" I shouted; "I'll be there in a minute—hold on, my brave lad!" and I strained every nerve to reach him, but the current was powerful that it baffled my efforts. One while the surf would sweep us far apart, and again dash us almost to gether. I saw, however, that I gradually neared the gallant little fellow.

The crew of the boat outside bent to their oars, determined at all risks to secure us, when suddenly there was a cry, "The shark! the shark!" And the huge monster shot along not twenty yards off between us and our only hope, the boat. My brain reeled as I looked. The boat was rapidly approching, but the surf was too wild to suffer it to come near where we were, and between us the frightful monster was sailing to and fro, waiting for the tide to sweep us out.

"I'm going, Frank; I can't stand it any longer. Oh, my poor mother and sister God forgive me my sins," faintly said the boy.

"Hold on a minute, for heaven's sake!" I cried, for I was already within a yard or two of him.

"Hold on!" thundered the lieutenant from the boat; "we'll be there if we die for it—give way, lads, for life, hurrah!"

But poor little Harry had held on until nature was completely worn out and casting a wild look on all around he faintly ejaculated, "My mother, sister—oh, my God!" and then, with a convulsive jerk of his arms, sank like lead into the waters. The next moment I would have been by his side.

"Give way! Give way! Give way!" roared the lieutenant, wildly, as he waved on his men.

"For God's sake, come on quick!" I shouted as I dived.

But alas! my search was unsuccessful, and when I rose to the surface I was far away from the spot where Harry had disappeared and nearing with frightful rapidity the shark on the edge of the surf. The boat was yet too distant to promise any effective aid. I shall never forget the emotions of that instant. A sickening sensation came over me; my brain reeled, my joints grew weak and my arms seemed to refuse their duty. The monster was now nearly at my side. I could see his great fins appearing and disappearing, and almost feel the lashing of his huge tail as it beat against the waters. I gave up all my hope of this world and all I loved, and shut my eyes upon my terrible enemy as I breathed a silent prayer for mercy to God. A moment that seemed years ensued—a moment of torture more horrible than any I ever had conceived—when a loud, sharp cry rang out just behind me, and at the same instant a coil of rope fell beside me as a voice called out in broken English, "Hold on!"

Clutching the cord mechanically, I felt myself drawn rapidly in among the breakers, while the enormous monster, perceiving he was going to be disappointed of his prey, struck the waves wildly with his tail, and dashed like lightning after me.

"In with him, hand over hand!" shouted a voice, and I felt myself jerked into one of the boats common on the coast. At the same instant a thundering cheer rung from the crew outside the surf. Forgetful of everything but my wondeful preservation I fell on my knees and thanked God I was alive.

When I looked again, I saw we were riding in upon the surf and the shark had sheered out to sea. We were soon landed, and I then learned the manner of my deliverience. Having been seen, a boat had been put off to our rescue, and had already taken up several of our crew, when they discovered me struggling against the current. Had I not been engaged in endeavoring to save poor Harry I would have noticed their approach sooner. As it was four of our crew were lost.

The poor boy, thank God was washed ashore that same afternoon, and there was not a dry eye on the ship when they heard of his untimely end. We burried him near Madras, and so ended our battle with the surf.—True Flag.

Sunday Shaving.

Some years ago the legality of conducting the business of a barber on Sunday was decided in the negative by Judge Elwell. It was one of the first cases of the kind brought before the courts of this State. A similar case is pending in Philadelphia and we print below a full report of it, because of its general interest.

John H. Fow and Edward A. Anderson brought the question before the Court by an appeal from the summary conviction of William R. Waldman Magistrate Baird found Mr. Waldman guilty of violating the Act of 1794 by working on Sunday. The argument of Messrs. Fow and Anderson was two-fold. The first point was that Mr. Waldman could not be deprived of his liberty in a criminal proceeding witho it a trial by a jury. The second point was that a barber's work was a work of necessity, and as such would be exempt from the penalties of the ancient law.

Stress was laid by Messrs Fow and Anderson in their argument on the first point that "the thoughts which influenced the members of the Legislature and the Constitutional Convention, that no man should be deprived of his liberty and suffer the ignomy of an imprisonment at the will of a judge, but only on a solemn conviction of a jury of his countrymen. They well knew that in the Court of Common Pleas the judge is omnipotent, that the verdict of the jury, be it for plaintiff or defendent, Commonwealth or prisoner, is at the mercy of the judge; he gives the law to the jury, and they simply pass upon the facts. If their verdict is not in accordance with law as he understands it, or if the facts adducted do not warrant their verdict or do justice between the parties, he may set the verdict aside, and so on until a verdict is found that in his opinion does justice. But in Court the Quarter Sessions, where a man's liberty, instead of his property, is involved, there the jury is omnipotent, and the power the judge has is merely to direct, and not control, except in cases where injustice has been done the prisoner"

Judge Pennypacker decided this point against Mr. Waldman, on the ground that if the Legislature had intended to take away the right of summary conviction, it, would have so expressed itself in some law drafted to meet the case. As the Legislature had done nothing of the kind, the Court could only read law as he found it.

Advancing to the discussion of the second point Mr. Waldman's counsel argued that the decision of the question whether barber's work was a work of necessity, was a question of fact which a jury should determine, but under the circumstances they would have to submit this "important question of fact to his Honor's solution."

Witnesses were then called to the stand, all of whom testified that they shaved or were shaved on Sunday and considered it a necessity to have a clean face, and that it had been for years a custom to keep barber shops open on Sunday.

Mr. Anderson addressed the Court, with particular emphasis upon the argument that the rise and progress of a custom in the community establishes the idea of its necessity. The argument then followed closely the lines set by the paper book prepared by Messrs. Anderson and Fow, from which the following are extracts:

"My cook prepares my food on Sunday, the maid cleans up the house, we wash our hands and face: why should not my barber shave me? The sun goes round seven days as well as six: a man's appetite is just as strong on Sunday as any other day; his hands and face grow dirty, his clothing dusty and untidy and his beard continues to grow.

"A large class of the community are so engaged as not to have the time to get shaved on Saturday, and to others a shave on Saturday will not render them clean on Sunday; and as cleanliness is next to godliness, it is not only a necessity to all, but a duty to those who are God-fearing.

"Distances are annihilated by the wonderful inventions of man, modern progress has caused the wants of man to increase, and that which was not a necessity in 1794 may be a necessity to-day. In 1794 there were but seven barber-shops that also practiced cupping and leeching in Philadelphia. We to-day are better able to judge of our wants, from a point of necessity, than our fore-fathers; and the sentiment of this community is that shaving on Sunday is a work of necessity."

At the conclusion of the argument Judge Pennypacker announced that "as the position taken in the case affected the interests of a large and important portion of the community," he would take the matter into careful consideration.

A Problem in Banking.

The president of a bank was asked this question: "Suppose I give a man a check on my bank for any sum of money, and when the check is presented the paying-teller, not knowing the holder, certifies the check; the holder gets it cashed outside; in the course of time the check reaches the bank upon which it is drawn, in the meantime I have learned that the representations upon which I gave the check are false and made for the purpose of committing an illegal act; I have notified the bank that such is the case. When the check is presented is the bank bound to pay it, and am I the loser?" The reply of the bank president is: "Yes; the bank must honor its own certification; inasmuch as the check was certified on the fact that you had a bank account where the check was presented, and that the signature of such check was yours, you must lose. You have no recourse unless you catch the fellow who made the misrepresentation, and that doesn't always get the money. I think such an act as the one of which you speak is a pentientiary offence."—Chicago Tribune.

Doctors And Churches.

The Doctors of New York City say Speer's Port Grape Wine has proved to be pure, unadulterated, of a fine flavor and tonic properties, and is unsurpassed for its restorative powers, and they prescribe it as a superior wine. Churches use it for communion.

An Eminent Preacher's Opinion.

Almost every man at sometime in his life is smitten with a newspaper mania, I fancy, says Talmage. He has some idea, moral or political or religious, and he induces some friend to advance the cash to start a paper, and he gets out a prospectus which threatens to do great things. After a week or two some plain, matter-of-fact stockholder finds out that there has been no special revolution in the universe and that the sun and moon do not stand still, and that men are just as big liars as they were before, and that boodlers are just as thick. Pretty soon a big bill for white paper comes in and absorbs all the spare cash in the business office and the printers refuse to work unless the "strings" are cashed up; the printer bows to the managing editor and the managing editor bows to the editor-in-chief and he bows to the stockholder. The stockholder bows to the general public, and the subscriber in the rural districts wonders why his paper does not come anymore.

My advice to a man who has anything to say in a newspaper is to say it through some paper that is already an established institution.

An idea is prevalent that a man who can do nothing else can edit a newspaper. A man who cannot row a dugout across the Mississippi river has no business trying to engineer the Great Eastern from New York to Liverpool. It requires, to edit a newspaper successfully, the brains of a philosopher, the skill, the vigilance and the boldness of a great general; a man ought to be a statesman, an essayist, a geographer, a statistician and an encyclopedia; and if more men had found this out earlier in their career there would have been many fewer cases of bankruptcy within the last fifty years. My advice to the young man who feels called on to start a newspaper is that he consider that the first sign of softening of the brain, that he place all his money in his wife's hands and make a rush for some lunatic asylum and surrender himself before he does anything desparate.

I believe a great improvement will be made in the newspapers when they drop the impersonal style. The best pens and the best minds are engaged to-day in writing for newspapers and their writings often appear in the editorial columns, yet most of them die unknown, and live, many of them, on incompetent salaries. After a while their hand forgets its cunning and without resources they die. The world never knew them. If this impersonality were dropped in the more important of newspaper writings, it would be a greater justice to those who engage in newspaper work. It used to add weight to an article in the New York Tribune to see the initals "H. G." at the end of it. When men sign their names to what they write, literary men will come to larger appreciation. No honorable man would write anything that he would be ashamed to put his name to, and writers can be held responsible for what they write. The impersonal editorial "we" will not stand between a man who has been assailed and the writer who is responsible for the article.

I could preach a whole sermon upon the everlasting blessings of a good newspaper. A good newspaper is the greatest temporal blessing that God has given to the people of this country. In the first place all the people read the newspapers, and then the newspapers furnish the greater portion of the reading of the people. They don't read books. The old people look for the deaths, the young people look for the marriages, and those who are unemployed read the want advertisements. Great libraries make a few intelligent men and women, but the newspapers lift the nation into sunlight. My idea of a good newspaper is a mirror of life itself. Some people complain because the evil of the world is reported as well as the good. The evil must be reported as well as the good, or how will we know what to guard ourselves against or what to reform. There is a chance for discrimination as to how much space shall be given to such things as prize fights, but the newspaper that merely presents the fair and beautiful and bright, sunny side of life is a misrepresentation. That family is best qualified for the duties of life who have told to them not only what good there is in the world but the evil, and is told to select the good and reject the evil.

Two Sides to a Character.

On a train between Jersey City and Patterson a poorly dressed woman, carrying a baby in her arms, walked through two coaches and was unable to find a seat. The railroad hog was there. In a dozen cases he had the whole seat by himself, and he meant to keep it. The woman finally found refuge in the smoking car, and by and by the hog went forward to enjoy a Havana and found her crying.

"What's the matter?"

"Baby is very ill, sir."

"And where are you going?"

"To my sister's. My husband is dead and I have no home."

"Have you any money?"

"Not a dollar, sir."

"Umph! Sorry for you. Let me hand you this."

The hog had been robbed of his bristles. Woman's tears had melted his selfishness. He returned to his car, gathered the other hogs about him, and said:

"Come down! Poor widow—sick baby—no home. Come down."

The hogs went down for their wallets, and in ten minutes the sum of $40 was put into the woman's hand, and the boss hog observed:

"There—there—it's all right—not a word! Now come back here!"

And as she followed him into the coach a dozen hogs rose up and insisted that she take their seats, and all gathered round her to voice the sentiment:

"Poor woman! Poor baby! Isn't there something we can do for you?"

The railroad hog can't be crowded, but he can be melted.—Troy Northern Budget.

"Ah! your Majesty," said Sir Walter Raliegh to Good Queen Bess, "I have a frightful cold in my head. What is the best and quickest cure?"

"The axe, my Lord," said the Queen and Raleigh dropped the subject.

GWINE BACK HOME.

As we waited in the L. & N. depot at Nashville for the train, some one began crying, and an excitement was raised among the passengers. A brief investigation proved that it was an old colored man who was giving way to his grief. Three or four people remarked on the strangeness of it, but for some time no one said anything to him. Then a depot policeman came forward and took him by the arm, and shook him roughly and said:

'See here, old man, you want to quit that! You are drunk, and if you make any more disturbance I'll lock you up!'

'Deed, but I hain't drunk,' replied the old man, as he removed his tear-stained handkerchief. 'I'ze losted my ticket an' money, an' dat's what's de matter.'

'Bosh! You never had any money to lose. You dry up or away you go!'

'What's the matter yere?' queried a man as he came forward.

The old man recognized the dialect of the Southerner in an instant, and repressing his emotions with a great effort he answered:

'Say, Mars Jack, I'ze bin robbed.'

'My name is White.'

'Well, then, Mars White, somebody has done robbed me of ticket an' money.'

'Where were you going?'

'Gwine down into Kaintuck, whar I was bo'n an' raised.'

'Where's that?'

'Nigh to Bowlin' Green, sah, an' when de wah dun sot me free I cum up this way. Hain't bin home sence, sah.'

'And you had a ticket?'

'Yes, sah, an' ober $20 in cash. Bin savin' up fur ten y'ars, sah.'

'What do you want to go back for?'

'To see de hills an' de fields, de tobacco an' de co'n, Mars Preston an' de good ole missus. Why, Mars White, I'ze dun bin prayin' fur it fo' twenty y'ars. Sometimes de longin' has cum till I couldn't hardly hold myself.'

'It's too bad.'

'De ole woman is buried down dar, Mars White—de ole woman an' free chillen. I kin 'member the spot same as if I seed it yisterday. You go out half way to de fust tobacker house, an' den you turn to de left an' go down to de branch whar de wimmen used to wash. Dar's fo' trees on de odder bank, an' right under 'em is whar dey is all buried. I kin see it! I kin lead you right to de spot!'

'And what will you do when you get there?' asked the stranger.

'Go up to de big house an' ax Mars Preston to let me lib out all de rest of my days right dar. I'ze ole an' all alone, an' I want to be nigh my dead. Sorter company fur me when my heart aches.'

'Where were you robbed?'

'Out doahs, dar, I reckon, in de crowd. See? De pocket is all cut out. I'ze dreamed an' pondered—I'ze had dis journey in my mind fer y'ars an' y'ars, an' now I'ze dun bin robbed an' can't go!'

He set to crying, and the policeman came forward in an officious manner.

'Stand back, sir!' commanded the stranger. 'Now, gentlemen, you have heard the story. I'm going to help the old man back to die on the old plantation and be buried alongside of his dead.'

'So am I!' called twenty men in chorus, and within five minutes we had raised enough to buy him a ticket and leave $50 to spare. And when he realized his good luck, the old snow-haired black fell upon his knees in that crowd and prayed:—

'Lord, I'ze bin a believer in You all my days, an' now I dun axes You to watch ober dese yere white folks dat believed in me an' helped me to go back to de ole home.'

And I do believe that nine-tenths of that crowd had tears in their eyes as the gatemen called out the train for Louisville.

DAIRY BUTTER MAKING RULES.

Pure salt of medium fineness and with a body velvety touch should be used.

The whole of the cream should be well attired every time fresh cream is added and half a dozen times a day besides.

During the summer the best churning temperature is 57 to 58 degs; during late fall and winter 62 to 64 degs. are preferable.

The butter should be kept cool during the working and also during the few hours while it may be left for the salt to dissolve.

When shallow, open pans are used for setting, the surrounding air should be pure; a damp, musty cellar is no fit place for milk.

As soon as the salt is dissolved the butter may be worked the second time to correct any streakiness which the first mixing of salt may have caused.

Three-quarters of an ounce of salt to the pound will be the right quantity for most markets for immediate consumption, and one ounce to the pound for packed butter.

The agitation of churning should be kept up till the butter comes into particles larger than clover seed. The buttermilk should then be drawn off and pure water 65 degs. added in its place.

Two days before the churning is to be done, about one quart of cream for every four pailfuls to be churned (or a quantity equal to 2 per cent.) should be set apart and kept as warm as 70 degs. Fahrenheit.

The cream for each churning should all be gathered into one vessel and kept cool and sweet. A good practice for fall and winter is to mix 25 per cent. of pure water with the cream before it has become sour.

One day before the churning that small quantity of cream called a fermentation starter, which will then be sour, should be added to the quantity which is intended for churning and be mixed therewith. By churning this for a minute or two the butter will be washed free from milk while it is still in a granular state. The milky water may then be drawn off and replaced by a weak brine at the same temperature. After a minute's churning the butter may be left to drain in the churn for half an hour before it is removed to be pressed and salted.—Professor James W. Robertson in Toronto Globe.

English Tourist—I am afraid the size of my foot may astonish you.

Chicago Shoemaker—O, no, Miss! It's quite below the average.

What Does It Mean?

"100 Doses One Dollar" means simply that Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most economical medicine to buy, because it gives more for the money than any other preparation. Each bottle contains 100 doses and will average to last a month, while other preparations taken according to directions, are gone in a week. Therefore, be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier.

FRIDAY, JULY 4, 1890.

THE PEOPLES' CHOICE

OUR NEXT GOVERNOR.

ROBERT E. PATTISON.

NOMINATED ON FIRST BALLOT.

The result of the democratic convention at Scranton on Wednesday was a complete victory of the people against the politician. Hon John H. Orvis of Centre County placed in nomination the name of William A. Wallace of Clearfield. The nomination was seconded by Mr. Jacobs of Juniata county. William S. Stenger of Philadelphia nominated Robert E. Pattison of Philadelphia, which was seconded by Mr. Ryan of Philadelphia. Mr. Dewalt of Lehigh nominated Robert E. Wright, Mr. McCormick of Lancaster nominated W. U. Hensel and Mr. Brown of York nominated Chauncy F. Black.

From the applause which greeted the names of the various candidates it was evident that Pattison was in the lead. Upon the call of the roll the ballot resulted as follows :

Robert E. Pattison	200
William A. Wallace	132
Robert A. Wright	12
W. U. Hensel	12
Chauncey F. Black	11

Pattison was declared the nominee amid the wildest enthusiasm, delegates and spectators rising to their feet and cheering again and again.

FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR.

There were loud cries for "Black" when the nomination for Lieutenant-Governor was declared in order.

Mr. J. J. Maloney nominated Hon. Chauncey F. Black ; Mr. Brown, of Indiana, nominated Hannibal K. Sloan; Mr. Steel, of Northampton, nominated Robert E. Wright. The nominations then closed and balloting was begun, which resulted as follows :

Chauncey F. Black	191
Robert E. Wright	157
Hannibal K. Sloan	3

Chauncey F. Black was declared the nominee, when Mr. Steel of Northampton moved to make the nomination unanimous.

Captain William H. Barclay of Allegheny was nominated by acclamation for the office of Secretary of Internal Affairs.

Ex-postmaster Harrity of Philadelphia was elected successor to E. P. Kisner as State Chairman.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C. June 30, 1890.

It seems that the free coinage people will have to select some hotter climate, than that provided in the U. S. mints, to melt their ore and sell it afterwards as coin.

Before Cleveland was elected President, it was the general argument that in spite of the many corruptions, and general inefficiency of many preceeding administrations, still it would not do to trust the democrats with the management of the intricate machinery of a great government.

The republicans had conducted affairs so long, and the democrats "were out" for so great a period, that this argument actually prevailed with a great many people.

But that cry will not be heard again The smooth running of the government machinery under the direction of democratic engineers is prominent in the memory of the people. In broad distinction to the old idea that the democrats of the United States constituted a particular class entirely devoid of either principle or ability, and unfit for responsible trusts is the aspect now presented by the republican administration.

The very men, who kept up the hue and cry during these past years have shown that individually: and collectively, the republican party is inefficient and unfaithful. That the harangues made for political effect, during past campaigns were insincere in their delivery, and republican politicians, unfaithful to the trusts reposed in them by the people.

The President and Secretary of State have watched the foolish measures of Congress and endeavored presistently, to prevent the republicans making an especial exposure of the party and killing its future prospects.

But the members of Congress went on from bad to worse and were about to commit what would have been "The Unpardonable Sin" to the administration; when the President was driven to use severe and savage methods to head them off in their insane career.

There are naturally, a few men, in every assembly, of too good a disposition to commit wrongs, and necessarily, too honest and wise to be identified with the contemptible legislation of the present Congress except in denouncing it,

Mr. Butterworth, one of the most distinguished members of the House, is extremely antagonistic to everything so far done, by Congress, relating to the tariff.

He recently said that the republican who was not gratified with the Presidents late Free trade message, did not understand the political situation, and that the heroic treatment of the President was absolutely necessary when it was delivered to save the party. He said it was not difficult to discover in the restless discontent which has grown up under the partial operation of our tariff, a sure harbinger of the overthrow of duty now imposed. "What is our situation as a party"? he says. The tariff unrevised and no consoling prospect that the Senate will do more than transpose the exorbitant rates that abound in the present schedule. Beyond that, the Senate, to the astonishment of the nation, by an overwhelming majority, voted to purchase and not merely the entire out-put of American silver mines, but to purchase and coin the silver of the world. And, as if that wasn't enough, it was proposed to have the tax payers of the United States pay one dollar for every 75 cents worth of silver the world might present at our mints. All this in the name of securing more money for our people—as if we couldn't secure half the money of Europe on better terms.

The republican party seems to have lost its appreciation of the common sense of the country. The Federal election law, which is now occupying the attention of Congress appears,

A WINNING TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR,
ROBERT E. PATTISON.

FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
CHAUNCEY F. BLACK.

merely an attempt to administer sugar coated poison; as obvious in its purport as the old fable of Esop's concerning the wolf and the lamb.

The bill begins with hypocrisy and ends with a piece of chicanery, since it pretends to have general application, but aims only at the South. It means that the South must be made to vote the republican ticket. There is a bitter fight between the democratic and republican members on the subject, but of course the majority will prevail, unless recent blunders have opened its eyes.

The Senate has passed the bill admitting Wyoming, notwithstanding the ridiculous and absurd constitution of the would be State. Every democrat voted against it.

An effort is being made in Congress, particularly in the Senate to secure a new building, that will be safe and healthy, neither of which the present building is for the Government printing office. It ought to succeed; a new building is a necessity.

Republican Convention.

We give below for the benefit of our readers the Republican platform and comments made upon it before and after adopted. If any reader can fail to see anything else than the fine work of Quay they are entitled to a prize for stupidity. The Philadelphia Press of the 25th says :

NO TIME FOR VINDICATION.

"Senator Quay's son may have inherited all the political astuteness of his father, but he has not as yet fallen heir to his political discretion or he would hardly announce that Mr. Delamater's nomination is essential to the personal vindication of his father. Senator Quay is not an issue just now. The Republicans of Pennsylvania are not concerning themselves with his vindication. They want the nomination at Harrisburg of a man acceptable to every wing of the Republican party and who can be fore November next, if not now, rally the whole body of Republican voters to his support."

The following dispatch taken from the Philadelphia Press the day following the convention shows how well they heeded the advice given above:

At the suggestion of Senator Quay, by telegraph, the resolution concerning him was taken from the position it first had at the top and put down near the bottom. Otherwise the platform was not disturbed and the Committee on Resolutions had little or no trouble in agreeing to it.

Everything went very smoothly. The details of the convention were all carefully directed by Senator Quay through his lieutenants on the ground, and his use of a private wire, which enabled him to remain in Beaver, has doubtless saved him a great deal of personal annoyance. The result of the convention is all that he desired.

The following is the platform which was prepared under the supervision of Quay in order to get a "vindication."

THE PLATFORM.

"We believe that every lawful voter has the right to cast a free ballot at every public election, and have it properly counted and certified; and we call upon Congress to adopt such legislation as will prevent a suppression or falsification of the votes of our fellow citizens at elections for officers of the National Government and will end political slavery throughout the Nation.

A SERVICE PENSION FAVORED.

"Our care for the welfare of those who upon the field of battle carried triumphantly the principles of Republican faith will end only when the last loyal soldier of the civil war shall have entered into his honored rest, and we ask Congress to grant a per diem service pension to every Union soldier and sailor who served in and was honorably discharged from the army or navy of the United States.

"The claim which the citizens of the border counties of our Commonwealth make upon the general Government for reimbursement for the loss they sustained in their homes and property at the hands of the enemy during the late war is one which national patriotism should repsect and honor, and we urge upon our Congressmen the use of every effort to have it quickly and completely satisfied.

"We endorse the tariff bill called the 'McKinley bill,' in the form in which it was passed by the House of Representatives, and we denounce the criticism passed upon that bill in the English Parliament as an unwarranted interference by a foregin nation with the right of American people to protect American industries.

"We reaffirm one of the earliest principles of our party when we declare that American workers should, like American manufacturers, receive national protection, and we request the General Government the strictest enforcement of the laws forbidding entrance into and employment in this country of pauper and contract laborers of foreign nations.

ORIGINAL PACKAGES.

"We urge upon Congress the immediate necessity of passing such legislation as will prevent the importation and sale of oleomargarine and of intoxicating liquors in this Commonwealth contrary to our acts of Assembly regulating and restricting the same, and empower every State to enforce its local laws relating thereto in the manner and in accordance with which they were enacted.

"Ballot reform is, and will remain the watchword of our party in every State, and we especially congratulate our political brethren in New York upon the fact that, although their Democratic Governor could deform, he could not wholly defeat their efforts to secure a free ballot for every American voter throughout their State.

"We charge the members of the next General Assembly with the duty to pass such laws, and if necessity should arise, to provide for such changes in the Constitution of our State as will insure to every voter perfect secrecy and freedom in exercising his right of sufferage.

"For almost thirty years the finances of this State have been under the control of our party. During that time we devised a system of taxing corporations, which serves as a pattern for and has been taken as a guide by many sister States, in their efforts to collect revenue for public purposes.

"We have paid off the debt which the Democratic party of this State created during a time of peace; we have almost extinguished the debt which the Democratic party of the Southern States inflicted upon us during the civil war, and years ago we lifted from the lands and homes of all our fellow-citizens the burdens of State taxation.

TAXATION TO BE LIGHTENED.

"But the depression under which our agricultural interests now suffer has made the present system of taxation bear too heavily on them, and we therefore pledge ourselves to lighten that burden, and as far as possible to equalize taxation. To that end we recommend that the surplus revenue derived from State taxation be used to lessen the taxation now laid upon real estate for local purposes by applying it, so far as it will in Legislative wisdom avail, to the increase of the appropriation for the support of the common schools, and to making appropriation for the care of the indigent insane, for the expenses of the jury system, and of holding the general elections.

"If thereby there should be necessity for enlarging our surplus revenue, we favor a just and equitable increase in the taxation of property of corporations.

"We recommend that the local system of taxation be so reformed as to permit the taxation of money capital for local purposes to such an extent as to enable the local authorities to reduce the rate of taxation upon real estate to an equitable basis.

"We require the General Assembly vigilance in making appropriation of public money and our charitable institutions receiving State aid in the strictest economy in the expenditures.

"The phenomenal, increase of our population and of our commerce, foreign and domestic, with the decrease in the circulation of our national banks, renders it imperatively essential to the general good in our judgment that there shall be a speedy and substantial increase in the currency of the country. Uncompromisingly hostile to mono-metalism, whether of gold or silver, and earnestly favoring the use of both as coin metals, the Republican party of Pennsylvania demands the enactment, by the Congress now in session, of such legislation as will, while securing the fullest use of silver as money, most certainly secure and maintain a parity between the two metals.

ENDORSING THE ADMINISTRATION.

We heartily endorse the administration of President Harrison, and declare that its wise conservatism, its undoubted integrity and its manifest efficiency, deserve the unqualified approval of the whole nation. We gratefully record the continued confidence of the Republicans of Pennsylvania in the wisdom, integrity and statesmanship of Hon. J. Donald Cameron, our Senior Senator at Washington, D. C., so emphatically manifested in his past services; we accept them as positive assurance of his faithfulness and efficiency in the future.

"For the chairman of our National Committee, M. S. Quay, we feel a lasting sense of gratitude for his matchless services in the last Presidential campaign. As a citizen, a member of the General Assembly, as Secretary of the Commonwealth under two successive administrations, as State Treasurer by the overwhelming suffrage of his fellow citizens, and as Senator of the United States he has won and retains or respect and confidence.

"We commend the course of the Hon. Thomas B. Reed, Speaker of the House of Representatives, in manfully preventing the obstructions of legislation and the waste of public time and money, and we tender him the congratulations and thanks of the Republican party of Pennsylvania.

"We express our gratification with the administration of Governor James A. Beaver and congratulate him upon the fact that his course has been marked by wisdom, integrity and that devotion to the welfare of all the people which will entitle him to the esteem and gratitude of the citizens of the State in all coming years."

President Harrison on Friday last signed the dependent pension bill, under which all veterans of the Union Army or Navy who are incapable of earning a livelihood, and their widows and children, will receive pensions.

We are authorized to announce that Hon. C. R Buckalew desires to be named for renomination by the Democrats of Columbia County, as member of Congress for this district.

Congressman Buckalew has on behalf of the Democratic members of the committee on the election of president and vice president and representatives in Congress, of which committee he is a member, prepared a minority report in opposition to the Federal election bill. The report presents at length the objections of the minority to the bill, which in their opinion, demand consideration and debate.

Hon. Richard Vaux of Phila. successor to the late Hon Samuel J. Randall, made a speech in the house Saturday last on the Federal election bill. He made a point that while the constitution gave Congress the right to prescribe the manner and method of holding elections, it did not give Congress the authority actually to supervise or control the elections.

Major Montooth of Pittsburg who was defeated for Governor at the republican convention, and who was tendered the position of Lieutenant Governor, but declined the position, says that he went into the contest for Governor on the assurance that it was a fair and open coatest, but that proved not to be the case.

Under the circumstances he did not think that he was called on for any special service in the way of helping to elect the ticket.

Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's. Peculiar in its medicinal merits, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Peculiar in its "good name at home,"—there is now more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, has no other preparation ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly.

How It Was.

At the battle of Gettysburg I was shot through the left leg and was sent to the hospital. The army surgeons relieved me but pronounced my case incurable. It discharged pieces of bone, and for several years I have suffered with a running sore. I tried everything which my limited means would allow, and experienced no relief until I tried Sulphur Bitters. I am now almost well and shall continue their use.—Old Soldier. 7 4-2t.

The new game called "Printers Delight," is played in this wise: "Take a sheet of ordinary writing paper, fold it up carefully and enclose a bank note sufficiently large to pay all arrears a year in advance. What adds immensely to the pleasure of the game is to send along the name of a new subscriber or two accompanied by the cash. Keep your eye on the editor, and if a smile adorns his face the trick works like a charm.

How to prevent watercloseets from emitting offensive odors:

About a pound of coperas, (sulphate of iron) at a cost of a few cents, put into a water closet, will entirely deodorize it. Five pounds of the same dissolved in a bucket of hot water and thrown down a cesspool will have the same effect. If repeated two or three times a month there will be no trouble from sewer gas or other effluvia. There is no unpleasant odor from it, as there is from chloride of lime or carbolic acid.

John G. Freeze, Esq, of Bloomsburg, Pa, a prominent member of the bar of Columbia county, was a lay deputy at the recent Episcopal convention. In the early fifties Mr. Freeze edited a Democratic paper in this place for a short time and was also postmaster of Towanda at the same time. But it was only for a brief season, as the emoluments of both offices were not sufficiently remunerative to hold him. Mr. Freeze is a gentleman of high literary attainments and has made valuable contributions to local history. There are but few left in Towanda who remember him as a citizen, and they, like him, are entering upon 'the sere and yellow leaf.—Towanda Journal.

The division of Greenwood township into two election districts is now an accomplished fact, and all the necessary arrangements are made for holding elections at two places. Whatever dissatisfaction or inconvenience may be felt at present, will in a year or two die away and the voters of the township will wonder that they ever tolerated the former condition of things. It is to be admitted that those few voters living in the immediate vicinity of the old election house will have a greater distance to travel to reach the new places, but when it is taken into consideration that they are so few as compared with those who were compelled to go the other way, the great benefit is at once apparent. In the result of any election, or of the management of the affairs of the township there will be no change. Another very desirable point is gained by the change, and that is the election board will be free from the intrusion of the public.—Tablet.

NATIONAL EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION.

SIXTH ANNUAL SESSION AT BOSTON, MASS., LAST WEEK.

The Sixth Annual Session of the National Editorial Association was held in Boston from Tuesday to Friday, June 24 to 27 inclusive. Pennsylvania was represented by J. Irvin Steel of Ashland, Thos. V. Cooper of Media, William Kennedy of Pottsville, H. J. stehly, Gettysburg, John Lutz Bedford, Thomas Chalfant, Danville, D. L. Sollenberger, Shamokin, A. J. Hughes, Port Allegheny, E. K. Meyers, Harrisburg, Geo. E. Elwell, Bloomsburg, W. L. Dewart, Sunbury, Mrs. J. W. Stofer, Mt. Joy, Chas. E. Steel, Minersville, R. T. Wiley, Elizabeth, J. M. Laird, Greensburg, W. S. Gunterman, Shamokin, J. W. Maloy, Lansford, J. Zamer, Carlisle. Besides these, the convention was composed of delegates from Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Indian Territory, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Texas, Tennessee, Vifginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin, making 225 delegates in all. Many of these were accompanied by their wives or daughters, thus making a body of fully four hundred.

The Convention was called to order at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning, by President Chas. A. Lee of Pawtucket, Rhode Island, in the Legislative Hall of the State House. An address of welcome was delivered by Governor Brackett of Massachusetts, and the morning was occupied by a business meeting. At 2 p. m. the delegates and their ladies took a carriage drive of more than three hours duration, at the invitation of the Governor. Harvard College and many other points of interest were visited. There were more than 100 carriages in line headed by five tallyhos. A reception was held in the evening at the Boston Press Club Rooms. There were business sessions daily, the exercises consisting of addresses, essays, poems, and general discussions. Among the pleasantest entertainments of the week was the excursion by steamer in Boston Harbor, tendered the convention by the Mayor of the city. The harbor is full of islands, on many of which are located forts and light houses. We passed Nantasket Beach, a beautiful summer resort on the coast, and steamed out into the ocean until the swell grew so strong that a number of ladies became sea sick, and the steamer was then turned back. Here and there seals could be seen disporting in the water and hundreds of jelly fish covered the surface of the bay. We passed a sailing vessel loaded with chinamen who were out on a pleasure trip. They saluted us by firing off a volley of fire crackers.

On this harbor the fires of American independence were first kindled, and it was here that the tea was thrown overboard because of the burdensome taxation imposed by the British Government. As we left the wharf a number of boxes were seen floating about in the water, and one of our party remarked that he supposed that was one of the tea boxes thrown overboard by the Bostonians in 1773. The remark was overheard by a Boston girl who cast upon us a glance of profound sympathy for our ignorance, and kindly volunteered the information that the object in the water was a lemon box.

"It is quite impossible, you know," she said, "for the tea to have remained here so long." We thanked her for the information.

A banquet was tendered on Friday night, at the American House, to the delegates, and at the same time the ladies were entertained at the Parker House. The tables were spread in a large hall beautifully decorated, and the delicious food was served in elegant style. Col. Chas. H. Taylor of the Boston Globe, acted as toastmaster, and many excellent speeches were made.

The local committeemen did everything in their power to make the visit of their brethren of the quill a delightful one. Col. Chas. H. Taylor, President of the General Committee, and Jos. B. Maccabe, Secretary, were among the most active ones, who devoted their entire time to their guests, and succeeded in making the convention a most enjoyable one. The sessions of the convention were presided over by President Lee in a most efficient and agreeable manner. On the steamboat excursion three cheers were given him as "the best fellow in the United States"; and at the close of the banquet he was presented with a beautiful gold watch.

E. W. Stephens of Missouri was unanimously elected President for the next year, and St. Paul, Minnesota was chosen as the place of meeting next July. Though this association is as yet in its infancy, it is now thoroughly organized, and its purpose is to bring together journalists from all sections of the country, for the discussion of topics relating to journalism, and thereby to benefit the public, it cannot fail to become stronger and stronger, and to increase in usefulness and interest.

Transportation was furnished delegates from New York to Boston and return by the Norwich Line. This line runs fine steamers to New London, where a change is made to the cars. The trip up the Sound is a most delightful one, and this trip was particularly so, as there were on board a large number of delegates from different states, who became easily acquainted with each other, and formed many warm friendships.

The convention adjourned on Friday, and most of the delegates started for home on Saturday. It is impossible to say anything of the work of this convention in this brief article. That it will be fruitful in results eventually, cannot be doubted.

We shall reserve our impressions of Boston and some other points visited for another time.

E.

A Vicious Animal.

On Tuesday afternoon William Giger was badly injured by his iron gray horse, known as the man-eater. Giger was at work on the fair grounds and was just hitching his team to the wagon at quitting time when the horse caught him by the arm, and throwing him down fell on him with its knees, and chewed his arm until the bone was broken in two places. Giger was released from his position with some trouble, the vigorous use of a pitchfork being required before the horse would let up. Giger purchased the horse from Richard Ivy about a year ago, and though its vicious disposition was known to him, he thought he had the brute under control.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES OF THE NORMAL SCHOOL.

The commencement exercises of the Normal School were inaugurated with a Baccalaureate Sermon on Sunday morning in the Methodist Episcopal church.

Since this is Dr. Waller's last commencement as principal of the school, the Senior class realized that there would be an especial appropriateness in his preaching the class sermon,

He complied with their request, taking for his text the 13th verse of the 13th chapter of I Corintheans, "And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is love." The theme of the discourse was "The excellence of Love," and was discussed under the following heads: First, definition of love, and contrasting it with its negative, showed that it is not a 'liking', nor yet a 'fondness' but infinitely more than either. Love is excellent because a fulfilling of the law. Second, It covers a multitude of sin. Third, It driveth out fear, and is the ground of courage. Fourth, An attribute of God Himself. Fifth, Can be developed and perfected by communion with Christ.

The entire sermon was a very logical development, and beautiful application of the theme. For forty minutes the very large congregation was held in most attentive interest. At the close of the sermon proper, the Senior class was directly addressed, and that wholesome advice, that sound doctrine and that manly christian charity, which so pentinently characterize the life of our esteemed Principal was given and advised as the only worthy Star of Hope, to be set in the zenith of their lives' ambition.

Monday June 30, was largely devoted to the examination of the undergraduates and preparatory students with a view to their entering the Junior class of next year.

Monday evening the program of the Junior class was rendered in Institute Hall

The following is the program:

An opening chorus by the class; The President of the class, John O'Donnell, delivered a very appropriate introductory address, reviewing briefly the year's work, and referring in measured terms to the hopes entertained for '91.

The Misses Mary Davies and Josie Leyshon followed with a pretty instrumental duet—"Sleighing Gallop."

Miss Eliza Ward then followed with an essay entitled, "Our Transition."

"Elsies Child," a very pretty recitation, wae well delivered by Miss Belle Trumble.

Miss Annie Reilly followed with a vocal solo entitled "When the Blue Birds Build their Nests."

Mr. W. B. Mausteller next recited with considerable force, "Wiley's Caught in a Maelstrom."

An instrumental solo by Miss Annie McAndrews was next.

Miss Fannie Schrader, a survivor and heroine of the horrible disaster at Johnstown last June, next read a very thoughtful essay, entitled "Golden Age of Thought."

W. B. Sutliff followed with a masterly oration entitled, "Intelligence and Perseverance win the Day."

We predict for this young man no mean position in life, if his effort as a junior is any criterion.

Miss Elva Garrison then sang very pleasingly a lively little ballad, after which the comical recitation "She wanted to be a Mason," was given by Miss Zua Guie. She certainly carried off the palm, and put the audience in a happy mood for the programme to follow during the week.

The exercise of the evening closed with a class chorus.

Tuesday evening Rev. Murray Klepper of Danville delivered before the Literary Societies a very interesting lecture, entitled: "The Family Quarrel."

After a very happy and humorous introduction the speaker took the audience into the secret of the quarrel, telling them that the contracting parties were "civil liberty and federal union. The courtship said he, began in a certain meeting in Boston known as the Boston Tea Party. The old folks (England) were bitterly opposed to the match, and therefore, as in all such cases, the courtship proceeded admirably, and after seven years of strife and opposition the parties on this side the sea realized that they were finally to enjoy the full fruition of their hopes.

The terms of betrothal were announced in that wonderful document, "The Declaration of Independence." This grand country of ours is yet in the honeymoon of its national marriage.

The history of the past is a history of strife, war, and bloodshed. The history of the future will tend ever toward peace and national harmony.

The lecturer closed with a prophecy regarding the great achievements of the future, contrasting the times of Washington with the present and the present with the conditions to be revealed in the years to come.

Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock the class of '88 held their re-union exercises in Institute Hall.

Pennsylvania Reserve Picnic.

A goodly number of Pennsylvania Reserves, many of them with their families gathered from far and near at Oak Grove on Thursday, June 26th, being the anniversary of the battle of Mechanicsville. Some brought baskets, depending on the Sutler for coffee and bean soup which was good and cheap at five cents per tin cup. Others procured their dinner outright from the Sutler at 25 cents. Ice-cream was served at the usual prices. About half the Reserve regiments were represented and a number of other Pennsylvania Regiments. Although the sun shone fiercely in the town, the old soldiers enjoyed themselves with comfort in the cool grove and many had the happiness of meeting old comrades for the first time since the war.

At 2 o'clock p. m. they assembled in the pavillion. Capt. J. B. Robinson called the business meeting to order and in an address received with marked applause congratulated the Association on the success of the reunion, urged that regimental and other organizations would do well to appoint their annual re-unions with them and then eloquently urged united and earnest action in the building of a Memorial Hall at Gettysburg. When he drew a picture of the Reserves heading the permanent volunteer service of the State and followed by succeeding regiments which as bravely and worthily upheld the honor of the State and the flag of the nation without a stain upon the volunteer service of the old commonwealth the applause was long and loud. It is evident that there is no room for jealousy between Pennsylvania regiments.

The first business was the selection of the next place of meeting. Milton, Bloomsburg and Wilkes-Barre were named. On the second vote Bloomsburg on account of its accessibility from all points was again chosen.

The following officers were elected: President, Capt. John Robinson, (7th) of Wilkes-Barre; Vice Presidents, Captains G. S. Baldwin, (7th) Wilkes-Barre, F. Strausser, (6th) Shamokin, J. B. Robison, (10th) Bloomsburg, and John Horn, (6th) Scranton; Secretary, B. F. Sharpless, (6th) Bloomsburg; Treasurer, C. S. Furman, (6) Bloomsburg; Master of Transportation, Col. John Jameson (7th) Bloomsburg; Sutler, C. S. Fornwald, (6th) Bloomsburg.

A question arising as to the exact name of the Associatson, the following was unanimously adopted, "The Pennsylvania Reserve Association for Central Pennsylvania."

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the President and Secretary be directed to enter into correspondence as soon as possible with the officers and active members of Regiments, Battery and Company organizations of the Pennsylvania Reserve with the object of inducing all such organizations to select for their annual meetings the time and place of this Association.

Resolved, That this association urges all comrades of the Penna. Reserves who can do so to attend the dedication ceremonies at Gettysburg on the 2nd of September 1890 or on such day as may be selected as Pennsylvania Reserve Day; and that they then and there urge and forward with all their ability the erection of a Memorial Hall on Little Round Top to the Pennsylvania Reserves.

The meeting then adjourned and the comrades enjoyed themselves until compelled to go to the several depots for their homes. A more pleasant reunion has never been known. Long may the veterans live to enjoy many more.

St. Columba's Church.

The interior of St. Columba's church has recently undergone some changes. The sanctuary has been enlarged and three new altars have been erected. The main altar is white with gold decorations, and is presented by the congregation. Above it is a handsome stained glass window in three large panels, the centre one representing the immaculate conception, the left panel containing a chalice and the right a baptismal fount. It is all in rich colors, and at the bottom is this inscription, "Gift of Normal Students." The two side altars are the gifts of a reverend friend of Father McCann. From the ceiling in the sanctuary hangs a beautiful lamp in brass, the gift of Mr. Joseph Ratti. The sanctuary is frescoed tastefully. At the right is a representation of the crucifixion, at the left is the resurrection and at the top of the arch a dove representing the Holy Ghost. The work was done by John Bernhart. The altar was built by J. P. Reich, of Mt. Carmel.

Special services will be held next Sundsy. The first service will be at 7:30, a. m. at which the children will receive their first Holy Communion at the hands of Bishop McGovern, of Harrisburg. Second mass will be at ten o'clock. It will be a solemn High Mass with deacon and sub-deacon, coram episcopo. The Bishop will make an address. The evening service will be held at 7 o'clock, at which the members of the congregation will be enrolled in the confraternity of Mt. Carmel.

Father Reilly of York, Father McAvoy, of Irvington, N. J., Father Seubert, of Lock Haven, Father Crotty, of Littlestown, Father Reilly and Father Koch, of Danville and Mr. Roney, ecclesiastical student, of Philadelphia, are expected to be present.

Special music will be prepared for the occasion, with an augmented choir.

AN OLD MAN.

Ninety-nine years ago a respected citizen of Philadelphia, in company with William Hess Sr., and others, journeyed up Fishingcreek in search of more fertile lands. This gentleman, Phillip Fritz, and his companions were satisfied with the newly prospected territory, and the following year a part of the above named company emigrated from Northampton Co. to this place. The result of the above named emigration was the settling along the head waters of Fishingcreek of the Hess, Fritz, Laubach, Cole and Kile families. Their ancestors are found interspersed through the vales and over the hills of the northern part of Columbia county.

Of those who came here nothing remains but their spirit and memories. They have hunted over the grounds and fished the streams of the red men, and now they have joined the Aborignal Indians on the Happy Hunting Grounds of after life.

Samuel Fritz Sr., is the oldest living representative of these families.

Eighty-eight years ago, April 22, he entered upon the theater of this life, and since boyhood has been an industrious highly respected Christian man. For many a day and year he stood by the forge and wrought out by honest toil the sweets which satisfy the necessities of life. He married Miss Sarah Samuel Spenser and raised a large family. But even with these he had time to furnish his table amply with venison. While many thousands of the finny tribe has graced the board of the Great Fisherman, and I beg leave to say that when Mrs. Samuel Fritz set a plate of fried fish or roast venison before her guests or family it was a rare treat, such as few indulge in now a days. We fisherman feel small when Mr. Fritz tells us that he and his two sons caught 700 in a part of a day. Their fish were large, while ours are generally small.

The Master of Life has caused the finger of time not to make such an inroad on Mr. Fritz as is the case with most old people. But he is still a smart old gentleman, enjoying reasonable good health. He even enjoys this at his advanced age so well that this summer he would take his fishing rod and go to a stream and catch a nice mess of trout. During gaming season he shot many squirrels, and, I am told that only a few days ago he treed a porcupine along the road and called several times for a gun, when it was brought him, he took and shot Mr. Porcupine dead. He is a great reader and can read much without spectacles. He is possessed of a good mind, a mind about like a man would have at 50; can read a newspaper article or a story in a book and after some length of time tell you it well. He lives with his son on the farm which was purchased by the father a long time ago. Many days and happy ones to this venerable old man.

Bloomsburg Carpet Mills.

The formal opening or the Bloomsburg Carpet Mills took place last Friday afternoon. There were over two hundred of the business men, accompanied by their wives in attendance. The first of the program was witnessing the machinery in operation, following this was a photograph of the building, showing the visitors present. Speeches were made by Rev. D. J. Waller, C. W. Miller Esq. and James Magee. The guests were afterwards invited to a bountiful lunch, prepared by the proprietors. Music was furnished by Mr. Metherell's orchestra, and many indulged in dancing on the fourth floor. Magee & Co. have now 30 looms running constantly and will soon add more.

His Ignorance Cost Me $150.00.

I was sick abed for three months. The doctor said I had Prolapsus Uteri, which was untrue. He didn't try to cure me but wanted to make a $1.50 every day. My uncle is a druggist, and he told me to turn the doctor off and try Sulphur Bitters. I did so and five dollars worth of Sulphur Bitters cured me of general weakness and debility.—Mrs. S. ——, New Haven.

Children's Day at Cambra.

The beautiful Christian Chapel at Cambra was filled to overflowing last Sunday night. The occasion was Children's day. The church was profusely decorated with evergreen of many, and choice varieties, wrought into arches, baskets, crosses and other designs. An artificial spray was formed under a glass dome of considerable size under which were placed a couple of dolls, the water being conducted thence by means of hose from the reservoir. The droppings, or flow of water was received into a bath tub which was also decorated with moss and shrubbery, all of which looked as natural as a spring of water. The water escape conducted it under the floor and allowed the tub to get only about half full. Space will not permit to enter into detail, but the exercises throughout were grand. The music superb. The exercises opened with singing by the Sunday school, after which prayer was offered by Prof. C. C. Hughes. The children were trained to a high degree of perfection and not a blunder nor ripple occurred. Declamations were well rendered by the Misses Zora Huges ——Cary, Zell and Lena McHenry, which did credit to each and all. Smaller children took part in other exercises in which they did equally as well. But the crowning part was the "Floral Drill," in which ten young ladies engaged, each carrying a floral wreath which they displayed with wonderful accuracy as they marched to the music of the organ, at which Mr. Stanley McHenry presided. The floral wreaths were so joined that at certain stages of the drill in their display they chimed like bells. It was a rich treat and every one enjoyed it.

Mrs. Rose Runyan died last Wednesday evening week ago, aged a little over 69 years.

Now is a better time for festivals since the rain has cleared away.

It is a bad habit many people fall into, both young and old, to stand about in groups at or near a church and engage in various discussions until the services of the sanctuary begin.

The festival at Hamiline last Tuesday evening week ago was postponed from time to time on account of rain, and even then it showered all around and but few attended.

The golden grain is about ready for the reaper's sickles.

Jacob F. Karns of this township died Wednesday evening one week ago, aged 22 years. Mr. Karns was interred at Hamiline and Mrs Runyan in the South Hold cemetery. Rev. S. P. Boone preached both funeral sermons at the Hamiline M. E. Church, the latter on Friday and the former on Saturday following the day of their death.

CHILDRENS' DAY.

Children's Day services were held at Canby and Espy in the pastorate of Rev. A. R. Glaze on Sunday, June 22nd, and at Buckhorn on Sunday 29th, both morning and evening. Throughout the services were a great success, both children and others were greatly edified and delighted. At Canby the offerings were devoted to home purposes. At Espy and Buckhorn they were devoted to the work of the Lays ville Orphans' Home, amounting in the former place to $10 and in the latter place to $13 65. The children had the pleasure of appearing on the stage before large and appreciative audiences. We are sorry that at Espy the House was too small to admit all who came to enjoy the children's services. Space will allow only a part of the program of exercises. All the churches were beautifully decorated with a choice selection of flowers and evergreens. The program at Espy consisted of the following:

Invocation and reading of Scripture, by the pastor; Awake and sing the Song, by School; Address to Flowers, Earl Creveling; The Flowers Praise, the choir; Responsive exercises for Children's Day; Gather Them In, school; They Neither Toil nor Spin, six girls; Recitation, Joe Rogers; We are marching On, school; Forbid them Not, Johnny Milnes; Children's Day, the children; A Child's Prayer, Ruth S. Glaze; Titles, Raymond Redeker; The Saints Desire, quartette and chorus;

FEEDING FOR BUTTER.

One by one the scientific authorities are helping to put a quietus on the misleading and injurious state that the proportion of butter in milk can not be increased by feeding. It is strange that such a heresy should have obtained currency among those to whom dairymen look for instruction. The writer, led by long experience to differ from the prevalent belief, has singly fought the error and has sustained the opposition to it alone for some years past. And now the professors are coming to the rescue, one by one, and already a powerful influence for the good of dairymen is exerted to encourage them to feed skillfully for increasing the fat solids in the milk. First, the Wisconsin Experiment Station, in a bulletin, declared that by suitable feeding the proportion of butter fats in milk may be increased; then Professor Phelps of the Connecticut Station, and now Professor Caldwell, of the New York Station, follow in making the same statement. Eight or ten years ago I gave a detailed account of the effects of various foods in this direction, observed through a whole year's experimental feeding, which has been reprinted in the American Dairyman's Manual, and which shows how various foods, rich in oil, tend to increase the proportionate quantity of the butter in milk, and how they also affect the quality. This last effect has been recently noted by the chemist of the agricultural department at Washington, and reported in a bulletin, and this is exceedingly noteworthy as showing the importance of choosing those foods whose fat will not deteriorate the quality of the butter.

This point may be worthy of some explanation. For some years past the physicians have known that fats in food or in medicinal preparations, when taken into the stomach, are not digested, but are mixed with the digested fluids in the form of an emulsion, precisely in a similiar manner to the mixture of the fat globules in cream, and that this emulsion is absorbed without change by the villi of the intestines, which are very fine tubes, set so closely together as to leave the appearance of the pile of velvet, and whose office is to absorb the nutriment and pass it into the thoracic duct, the large vessel which is found passing along the spinal column and close to it, and which conveys the nutriment directly into the blood, so that the minute globules of fat in the food thus pass directly into the blood, by which they are distributed to the various parts of the body, and of course to the minute glands of which the milk is formed. And when this glandular substance is broken down to form the milk, these same particles of fat are let loose and escape into the milk and form the butter.

Thus, tracing the fat in the food in which it exists in the form of minute drops or globules in the cells which make up the tissue of plants or grains, we can follow it directly into the milk, without change; and thus are able to account for the effects on the milk of the various kinds of foods given.

The knowledge is of fundamental importance to the buttermaker, and the whole subject is worthy of the most careful study. It relates, too, to the varying ability of the cows to extract the fats from the food, for cows vary very much in this respect, and some can healthfully dispose of twice or three times as much fat as others, and some, as in the case of the Jersey cow Princess the Second, may be able to actually convert seven pounds of fats in the foods into butter in one day. This is a physiological function and ability, and is thus to be inherited and conveyed by breeding, while it is excited and encouraged—educated, as it may be said, or led out, as the word signifies—by feeding and training. Thus, it may not be right to think or speak of such cows as phenomenal any more than we should call the extraordinary young horses Axtell or Sunol phenomenal. They are not so at all. They are instances of the result of human power skillfully exerted over the domestic animals, and everyone of the numerous examples of this successful exercise of man's dominion over creation should be an incentive to exertions in the same way by every intelligent dairyman in the improvement of his herd, and in his pursuit of success and profit in his business.—American Agriculturist.

An Organ's Back Down.

Some time ago, during the contest for republican nomination for governor, the Philadelphia Press surprised its readers by declaring that the charge of Lew Emrey that Senator Delamater bought his seat in the senate, was too serious a one to pass unnoticed and it called on the now candidate for governor to let the people know just how much truth Emery's statement contained. If our memory serves us correctly, the Press said at the time that until Delamater explained matters he would remain under a cloud, or words to that effect, and its comments created no little amount of talk in political circles.

Yesterday, however, speaking of the republican candidate for governor, the Press said: "Mr. Delamater made a bold, aggressive, winning canvass in which he has compelled the admiration even of his enemies. He will make a thoroughly live governor and give the state an administration which the people can contemplate with satisfaction and pleasure. He has the capacity of attaching to himself men of high character and strong personality, and their active backing throughout his canvass made him a strong candidate independent of other aid." We desire to remind our Philadelphia contemporary that Delamater hasn't yet answered Emery's charges. What does it mean bp beslobering with praise a man according to its own statement is under a cloud?—Patriot.

Not an Imaginary Line.

It is not generally known that there positively exists a marked boundary line between Canada and the United States. Most people suppose the line to be "imaginary." But the fact is that the boundary is distinctly marked from Lake Michigan to the Pacific by cairns, pillars of iron, earth mounds and timber clearings. There are nearly four hundred of these marks between the Lake of the Woods and the foot of the Rocky Mountains. The British have placed one post every two miles and the United States have alternated between each of the British posts. The posts are made of cast-iron, and on their faces are the words: "Convention of London, October 20, 1818." Where the line crosses through lakes, small mountains of stones have been built, rising eight or ten feet above the level of high-water mark. In the forests, the line is defined by felling trees, making a clearing for a space of a rod wide.

"LITTLE BO PEEP

had lost her sheep and couldn't tell where to find them." So the old nursery rhyme says, and it goes on to bid her "Leave them alone and they'll come home and bring their tails behind them." All this may be true of lost sheep, but if you have lost your health you cannot afford to leave that alone. It will not come back of its own accord. Some people trust that they never bother about colds. They "let them go the way they came." Alas! too often the victims go—to a consumptive's grave. Until very recently a cure for Consumption, which is universally acknowledged to be scrofula affecting the lungs, would have been looked upon as miraculous, but now people are beginning to realize that the disease is not incurable. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure it if taken in time and given a fair trial. This world-renowned remedy will not make new lungs, but it will restore diseased ones to a healthy state when other means have failed. Thousands gratefully testify to this. It is the most potent tonic, or strength restorer, alterative, or blood-cleanser, and nutritive, or flesh builder known to medical science. For Lingering Coughs, Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, "Liver Complaint" and Dyspepsia or Indigestion, it is an unequaled remedy.

Lieut.-Gov. Jones, of New York State, contributes to a recent issue of the Journalist an eminently sensible article entitled "What I Know About Advertising." Mr. Jones is known as a shrewd advertiser of forty years standing, and what he has to say on the subjecet is well worth listening to. "No enterprise or business, be it meritorious or otherwise," he says, "is likely to succeed in this age without advertising." If you advertise in a newspaper the consideration of mediums is of great importance. Of course 'circulation' should control largely a decision; and on this question of circulation the advertiser has rights that many publishers attempt to ignore and wilfully deceive, which is simply an attempt to perpetrate a fraud. But advertisers have become very independent, and insist on knowing what they are to receive for their money. But it used to be the manner of newspaper men to fall back on their dignity when asked concerning their circulation. They assumed that you shoul l buy a 'pig in the bag,' and were not willing that you should 'heft' the bag even if you did not ask to see the pig and guess the amount of pork without the aid of a balance. The general rule is that the value of a newspaper as an advertising medium is determined by the number of bona-fide subscribers, although it will be noted that the smaller the subscription list the more valuable the paper as an advertising medium, in the estimation of the publisher, for reasons that you fail to comprehend. I say bona-fide subscribers. By that I mean those who subscribe, pay and regularly receive their paper, one of whom is worth more as a prospective customer than ten who receive the paper gratuitously through the extra edition system. A paper that is regularly taken and paid for is the oracle of the family into which it enters. It is read first, and its teachings, be they through the editorial or advertising columns, are accepted as gospel. It is not an easy thing to write an advertisement that will command attention. A successful "ad," is an inspiration. Good advertising may be erratic and eccentric, but never spasmodic. Continuity is a necessity. Advertise, then advertise some more, and continue to advertise, as you cannot advertise too much if you have a product the people want, and place it before them through the right mediums."

Wrestling With Spelling.

Not long ago, a citizen of Austin had a small house to rent, and he got a paint-brush and a board and hung out a sign reading: "To Wrent." Everybody who passed by had a smile at the orthography; but it was three or four days before the owner ventured to ask of a butcher:

"Say, what on earth makes everybody grin at the sign?"

"Why, it's the spelling that gets 'em!"

It was explained that the word "Wrent" was not exactly in accordance with Webster's "latest," and the speller went away mumbling.

"Well, if they are so very particular about it, I can change it." And he did. Within two hours there was a new sign reading: "Two Lot."

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE, with its varied and excellent contents, is a library in itself.

It was indeed a happy thought to print an entire novel in each number.

Not a short novelette, but a long story such as you are used to get in book form and pay from one dollar to one dollar and a half for.

Not only that, but with each number you get an abundance of other contributions, which gives you a good magazine besides the novel.

The ringing Home which have been struck on the gateway of popular favor, have resounded throughout the entire land, and to-day Lippincott's Magazine stands in the front rank of monthly publications, and is the most widely-read-and-talked-of publication of its kind in the world. A Lightning Change Artist.

Tom Kelly, the ticket seller of Barnum's circus, is as much a specialist in his peculiar line as any, strictly speaking, professional man. The whole process of receiving the money, giving the tickets, and making the change is done in three movements with the regularity of clock-work. The ticket window is about 4 feet above the bottom of the wagon. Mr. Kelly sits upon a high stool, with a large sum of money in dollars, halves and quarters piled upon the shelf on his right. A corresponding shelf on his left is covered with tickets and half tickets. All this is arranged before the window is opened. A line of several hundred impatiently clamoring people wait outside. Mr. Kelly climbs upon his stool, takes a long deep breath, and opens the window. Money is received in his right hand and dropped upon the floor. The thumb of the left hand has in the meantime pushed a ticket from the pile, and the right hand has selected, mechanically, the change and presented it to the purchaser. No attempt is made to pile up the money received. It is literally dropped, and when the show commences Mr. Kelly sits like a buoy surrounded by a sea of money, the crests of whose waves mount up to and press closely around his waist and almost on a level with the window ledge. After the performance commences, and no more people want tickets, Mr. Kelly closes the window and steps carefully over this bed of money. Then, and not till then, is any attempt made to count and sort this sum, which amounts to several thousands of dollars in pieces of all denominations.

Heating by Electricity.

The Philadelphia Inquirer says the electrician of the Pittsburg flour mills, Minneapolis, has made some discoveries and inventions that will lead to heating by electricity. The details of which he has not yet made public is a process by which houses can be heated by electricity at a much less cost, as he claims, than by coal. His great advantage is that he can utilize all the heat developed instead of sustaining a loss of 75 per cent. by the use of the ordinary combustibles. This is to be done by a simple system of radiators, which will be connected with a street wire from the central station. There will be a system of switches by which the heat in any room may be raised to any temperature desired or the heat cut off entirely.

Jack Heavydrink (who has just filled his glass)—Say, barkeep'r, there's a fly in this whisky; gimme spoon.

Barkeeper—Never mind the spoon; I'll put in a few drops more, and let him float off the top.

McCrackle—Base-ball is not so popular in the South as in the North.

McCorkle—That is queer, too, for one often sees cotton batting.

Arsenic and Potash Three Times a Day For Five Years.

I have been taking S. S. S. (Swift's Specific), and feel it to be my duty to state its results, that others who are similarly affected may profit by my experience, and be relieved of their sufferings. I had suffered for a long, long time with what the doctors called Herpes, an eruption of the skin, forming scales and blotches which was horrible to endure. Under the advice of physicians I took 30 drops of Fowler's Solution of Arsenic every day for 25 years besides many other kinds of medicines, without a cure. I have been taking S. S. S. for about two months, and the eruption and unpleasant symptoms have all disappeared, and I am continuing it to completely root it out of my blood, which I am confident it will do; and what it has done for me I am sure it will do for others, for there are thousands of such cases all over the country which resist all other treatment I have lived here in my present business for 22 years.
